

ABSTRACT

A brightness enhancement film comprises an array of tapered structures, each said tapered structure having a light input aperture and a larger light output aperture . The inner side-wall of each said tapered structure is adapted to reflect off-axis light from the light guiding plate incident at said input aperture to said output aperture.